Art Unit: 1771

1. Claim 1 is rejected as failing to define the invention in the manner required by 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph.

2. The claim(s) are narrative in form and replete with indefinite and functional or operational language. The structure which goes to make up the device must be clearly and positively specified. The structure must be organized and correlated in such a manner as to present a complete operative device. The claim(s) must be in one sentence form only. Note the format of the claims in the patent(s) cited. Specifically, regarding claim 1, the phrase "such as" renders the claim indefinite because it is unclear whether the limitations following the phrase are part of the claimed invention. See MPEP § 2173.05(d). The same is true of the use of e.g. Claim 1 is made up of four sentences but must be re-written to be one sentence only. In line 6, it appears that "ware" should be "wear". Also, it is not clear what is meant by "low tack". The term "low tack" in claim 1 is a relative term which renders the claim indefinite. The term "low tack" is not defined by the claim, the specification does not provide a standard for ascertaining the requisite degree, and one of ordinary skill in the art would not be reasonably apprised of the scope of the invention. The specification does not specify what degree of tackiness would be considered low.

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Art Unit: 1771

4. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Perlman, U.S. Patent No. 3,407,695. Perlman discloses a protective should pad comprising an adhesive layer 20 which allows the pad to be removably affixed to a surface and which corresponds to the claimed adhesive layer, a cushioning layer 18 which comprises a foam layer bonded to a fabric layer and outer layer comprising another foam layer bonded to a fabric layer which provides a non-slip surface for the pad. See col. 2, lines 45-70.
